The ‘Ghost’ of Christmas Past

By Brig. Gen. Duane Deal
21st Space Wing Commander

As we are already sending Team Pete members off in the next AEF rotation, what thoughts do you have regarding past holiday times?

Hopefully, they include pleasant things like memories of family gatherings, to favorite gifts given or received, or perhaps even to thoughts of special foods prepared only at this time of year.

For many of us, such memories involve a combination of those and of service-related situations. For example, my Dad spent holidays away from home during both World War II and the Korean conflict; my brothers-in-law spent Christmases away in Vietnam; in contrast, more than 50 percent of today's force wasn't even alive at the end of the Vietnam War ... Personally, I can vividly recall having been a single young pilot sitting air defense fighter alert Christmas Day so my married friends could be at home with their families; in contrast, today we have no such stateside active duty CONUS perimeter alert forces, either in air defense or strategic nuclear forces aircraft. Just 12 years ago – like it was yesterday – I remember being in Southwest Asia as a part of the massive DESERT SHIELD buildup, preparing to serve “chow” to our tent city residents while the day-to-day detail troops enjoyed their Christmas dinner—unknowingly just weeks away from DESERT

STORM kicking off. In contrast, nearly 50 percent of our service members were too young to join our ranks at the time of that buildup and war.

This year, hopefully you're as blessed as me to be amongst family and friends at home, and enjoying the holidays on the Front Range. But through it all, we must also think of those unable to be with us or with their families – those from Team Pete and the entire military/civilian team scattered across the globe, and those deploying over the next few weeks – all serving proudly.

As we maintain contact with them as they place service before self, let's pray and act to make this year a pleasant “ghost” of Christmas past for them to remember.

Submitting Action Lines

The Action Line is your direct link to the 21st Space Wing Commander – use it wisely! Try to resolve problems at the lowest level possible – with the person or activity, and then follow the chain of command.

Though it's not required, we ask that you leave your name and phone number so we can get back to you for clarifications, or if your response isn't printed. If you can't get satisfactory results, call 556-7777. Or you can fax your question to 556-7848.

Child care concerns

QUESTION: Why aren't the Child Development Center care workers provided the proper materials to provide quality care to the children? I have seen times when there were no sheets to cover the mats for the children to sleep on. Also, we are told that there are to be no visitors whatsoever allowed into the rooms. Yet I have seen visitors allowed in two of the rooms. Thank you.

ANSWER: Thank you for the opportunity to address your concerns. The CDC has a linen contract to launder all sheets and provide them to us on a timely basis. Apparently, there was a problem with having enough clean sheets for all of the mats on the occasion you saw. However, this should not be a concern in the future as the assistant director and director now provide direct oversight to ensure that an adequate number of linens are available each day. Visitors are indeed allowed at the CDC but they must sign in at the front desk and have an escort while in the facility. This policy includes family members of employees. If you have any further questions, please contact Toni Hansen at 556-4883.

Sluggish Internet

QUESTION: Why haven't they upgraded the Internet service in base housing? The base housing office sent out surveys asking who was interested in High Speed Internet Service. After the surveys were completed we were notified that Adelphia Cable would be providing this service within the next six months. I know many base residents who are also confused with what our options are on receiving high speed Internet service.

ANSWER: We agree that the Internet service in family housing and the dorms needs to be improved. Those involved in the process are working diligently to make sure this happens. Here's a recap of our activities. Surveys were sent to residents in April 2001 to determine whether they were interested in digital cable and high-speed Internet. The results showed a high level of interest. The current contractor (Americable) was contacted to upgrade their existing system to meet this need but declined. We checked with several other Internet and cable providers, but Adelphia offered the best options both in service and in cost. We entered into negotiations with Adelphia in the summer of 2001. However, due to the increase in force protection measures after the events of Sept. 11, and additional contract negotiations between the base and Adelphia, this effort took longer than anticipated. We've found that all housing units also require rewiring in order to accommodate any upgraded service. We have developed an FY03 project to accomplish the work. On the current program, rewiring will happen in spring or summer of 2003, and then Adelphia's services would be available to residents in the Fall. In the interim, high-speed Internet is offered for free at the base library via Digital Subscriber Line. If you have any further questions, please contact either 2nd Lt. Travis Mabry in the 21st Civil Engineer Squadron Engineering Flight at 556-5783, or Colleen Miller in the Housing Flight at 556-4332.

No pets allowed

QUESTION: Why aren't pets allowed in the Temporary Lodging Facility?

ANSWER: AFI 34-246, 2.2.18 prohibits pets in lodging rooms and on lodging premises. The goal of Pikes Peak Lodge is to ensure all of our guests have a clean, comfortable room to guarantee a good night's rest and a pleasant stay. In order to accomplish this, we must enforce standards that are in accordance with Air Force safety and public health guidelines, and that includes remaining sensitive to those with pet allergies. Also, previous experience has shown that not all guests control their pets as you likely do, leading to damage to the quarters. Our lodging staff will ensure a list of local pet kennels is available upon request. If you have further questions, please contact 1st Lt. Chip Hollinger at 556-6295.

Peterson K-9 team fetches multiple awards

By 2nd Lt. Suzy Kohout
21st Space Wing Public Affairs

A military working dog team from Peterson took three awards in the 14th Annual Tucson Canine Trials, Nov. 15 through 17.

Staff Sgt. Joe Villalobos, 21st Security Forces Squadron, and his partner Rex took third place for the agility course, seventh in explosive detection, and eighth in the building search category.

Each military working dog team had to place eighth or higher to receive an award.

“The trainers have a big role in keeping these dog teams proficient in their duties, and this was just a way for one of their products to be represented in a competition,” said Villalobos.

The Tucson Canine Trials is a civilian competition, with Department of Defense dog teams also invited. Of the 64 teams competing, 21 were DoD canine units, and 43 were from civilian law enforcement agencies.

The dogs participated in six different categories: explosive detection, building search, agility course, tactical obedience, open area search, and handler protection.

Explosive detection consisted of a five-minute problem where the dog searched a warehouse and another five-minute problem where they searched vehicles.

In the building search, the dogs had to search for a person. In this exercise, a decoy is hidden within a building. Dog teams yell to let the decoy know that there is a dog present. If there is no response, the handler will release their dog to find the decoy.

The agility course was based on the civilian courses set up for dogs.

“Civilian obstacles are a lot harder,” said Villalobos. “They have teeter-totters, five-foot walls, elevated tunnels, and more. We don’t use these obstacles for our training purposes. I’m very proud of Rex, especially for him to come in and get third place, and only be introduced to it for a day.”

Tactical obedience consists of maneuvering around cones without having the dogs by their handlers’ sides.

The dogs also had to perform an open area search, where they sought to find a decoy in one of many cardboard boxes scattered throughout a softball field.

Finally, the dogs participated in handler protection, or a courage test. This exercise was termed double decoy. A decoy would come out and fire a gun. The dog was released onto the decoy’s sleeve and then the decoy would fire another round. The dog is supposed to release upon the handler’s direction. When the dog releases, he is redirected to another decoy. Before he reaches the decoy, the handler calls the dog off and he returns to his handler.

“During this exercise a lot of dogs cowered down after the first shot by letting go without the handler’s command,” said Villalobos. “Rex got really mad and continued to hold on to the decoy. Needless to say, we didn’t do so well on this one.”

“I learned a little more about Rex during this exercise, but I learned a lot more about different training techniques civilians practice,” he added. “I’ll be telling handlers here about different things we can do to train our dogs even better.”

To choose dogs for the competition, Peterson held a mini-competition. The mini-competition reflected the events of the Tuscon Trials.

Two dog teams were selected to represent Peterson: Villalobos and Rex, and Staff Sgt. Bruce Estep, 21st Security Forces Squadron and his dog, Rin.

The two dog teams worked a night schedule for training in preparation for the competition.

“We knew the event was going to be on a baseball field, so that is where we did the majority of the training,” said Villalobos. “We also used buildings around base for conducting searches, and toys that usually distract the dogs, in order to teach them to focus on the task at hand.”

“Overall, I was very happy with Rex’ performance,” he added. “Having Rex do well and knowing he did well because of hard work and dedication makes not only the handler happy, but everyone who has ever done training with him feel good.”

Harvest of Love wraps up successful food drive

By Tech. Sgt.
Michael Phillips
21st Space Wing Public Affairs

Dozens of volunteers from Peterson Air Force Base, Cheyenne Mountain Air Force Station, and Schriever Air Force Base spent the week supporting Colorado Springs’ largest food drive.

Their efforts, along with tremendous support from the community, helped the 12th Annual KRDO/Care and Share Harvest of Love food drive collect and distribute 698,119 pounds of food to area families.

This far exceeded last year’s total of 482,000 pounds, and even surpassed this year’s goal of 500,000 pounds.

The food drive ran from Nov. 18-25.

“Care & Share’s annual Harvest of Love has once again been successful beyond our dreams,” said Rolf Deitrich, Care and Share Development Director.

“With Care & Share’s shelves nearly empty, and demand higher than ever in our 28-year history, this accomplishment could not have come at a better time,” Deitrich said.

Elementary, middle, junior high and high schools throughout the county collected truckloads of food, which were transported to the food bank warehouse near I-25 and Garden of the Gods Road.

“With this amount of food coming our way, we faced a logistical challenge,” Deitrich said. “For the 11th straight year, Peterson Air Force Base volunteered their time and vehicles to retrieve all of this food in one week.”

Over the years, people from the Peterson Complex have supported the drive. Peterson’s participation has grown from a small, squadron effort into a full-force community outreach program.

Of the support Peterson people provide to the Harvest of Love each year, Deitrich was able to sum it up in one word, “Outstanding!”

Holiday tree lighting

All base members are invited to the holiday tree lighting at the west side of the chapel at 4:30 p.m. today. The ceremony will include, songs of the season, a visit from Jolly Ol' You-Know-Who, and refreshments in the chapel.

STRATEGIC MASTER PLAN ON WEBSITE

The new Air Force Space Command Strategic Master Plan has been released and is accessible via the command's public website.

The plan, "Strategic Master Plan FY04 and Beyond," presents the AFSPC vision; outlines a strategy to implement this vision; and defines a twenty-five year plan, integrated across the AFSPC mission areas, to provide the space capabilities required to achieve the vision.

The plan can be found on the AFSPC public website at <http://www.spacecom.af.mil/hqafspc/library/AFSPCPAOffice/Final%2004%20SMP--Signed!.pdf>.

Blotter

The following real-life events with real individuals from around the Peterson Complex are to inform you of crimes, accidents, and events occurring on base. The following entries are from hundreds recorded in the Peterson Police Blotter:

Editor's note: Although the Space Observer staff may make light of some Blotter entries, the intent is to call attention to our security and law enforcement concerns. However, rest assured, our professional Security Forces treat each incident seriously.*

911 medical response -- Nov. 25

Security Forces, the Fire Department, and an ambulance responded to the Clinic where an employee had called for a retiree experiencing chest pains. The individual was transported to Memorial Hospital for further treatment.

Pickup poked -- Nov. 25

A contract employee reported to Security Forces that his vehicle had been damaged while parked on Mitchell Street. He stated he had left his teal-color pickup around noon, and returned approximately three hours later when he noticed a dent to the driver's side rear quarter panel with a bumper mark within the dented area.

Snap, crackle, pop, pop, pop -- Nov 25

A Security Forces sentry reported a civilian had damaged three tires on his vehicle while driving through the outbound lane of the North Gate. The damage to the tires was a result of a spike strip being used in lieu of the bollards. The real cause, however, was the daydreaming driver had ignored the cones blocking traffic from entering the inbound and outbound lanes, chose to maneuver around them, hit the spike strips, with the predictable outcome of three of his tires blowing out.

Base Exchange back & bonk -- Nov. 26

Security Forces responded to the BX where an employee had notified them of an accident in the parking lot. Seems one driver decided she owned the parking lot, and backed squarely into another vehicle. Despite her best efforts, there was no vehicle damage. The Security Forces awarded the bonker an early Christmas present of a citation for improper backing.

Harmony heister -- Nov. 26

AAFES notified Security Forces one of their detectives was detaining a 17-year-old female family member for shoplifting. Seems the musical mental midget decided to ignore her conscience, posted warnings, the detectives, and security cameras by attempting to steal nine CDs worth $115. Colorado Springs Police Department responded and issued the tune taker a summons for shoplifting. Security Forces released the teen thief to CSPD.

Contempt costs -- Nov. 27

When Security Forces ran an ID check on a contractor working on Peterson, the check showed two outstanding warrants from Denver for failure to appear, and contempt of court. CSPD was contacted and asked to respond, and confirmed the warrants were current. The knucklehead was transferred to the county jail.

Young & snockerred -- Nov. 27

Security Forces responded to a dormitory where a sober young lady had rebuffed the advances of an imbibing young man. When she refused the booze breath, he angrily left and kicked a wall. The object of his affections later found frozen beer on the windows. The young man was advised of his rights, admitted to underage drinking, but denied the alcoholic window washing (presumably, he drank all the beer?).

Animals, birds, and even crustaceans attacked? - Nov. 28

Security Forces and many other parties responded to the Aragon Dining Facility to investigate reports of animal, bird, and crustacean attacks. They confirmed their suspicions, finding evidence of both pigs and turkeys in the serving line, along with shrimp cocktail on ice. Like the others investigating the scene, they were most impressed with the tremendous spread put forth by 21st Services Squadron for the Thanksgiving Dinner.

Santa's surveillance, or shenanigans? -- Nov. 29

Security Forces responded to a base housing unit to investigate a report of an unlawful entry. Seems the kitchen window had been opened, and muddy footprints were on the mat next to the sink. No personal belongings had been removed. Photographs of the area were taken to aid in the investigation.

Dorm denting -- Nov. 29

Security Forces responded to Dorm 1156, where a government vehicle was backing from a spot (without a spotter), and struck an innocent pickup truck. The driver of the striker was awarded a citation for improper backing and released.

Dunce denim devotee -- Nov. 30

Security Forces responded to the BX where a family member daughter had decided to make a two-legged discount by stealing a $36 pair of jeans. Detained by an AAFES detective, the jeans genie was turned over to the SFS, who in turn turned her over to CSPD for processing and issuing the summons for shoplifting.

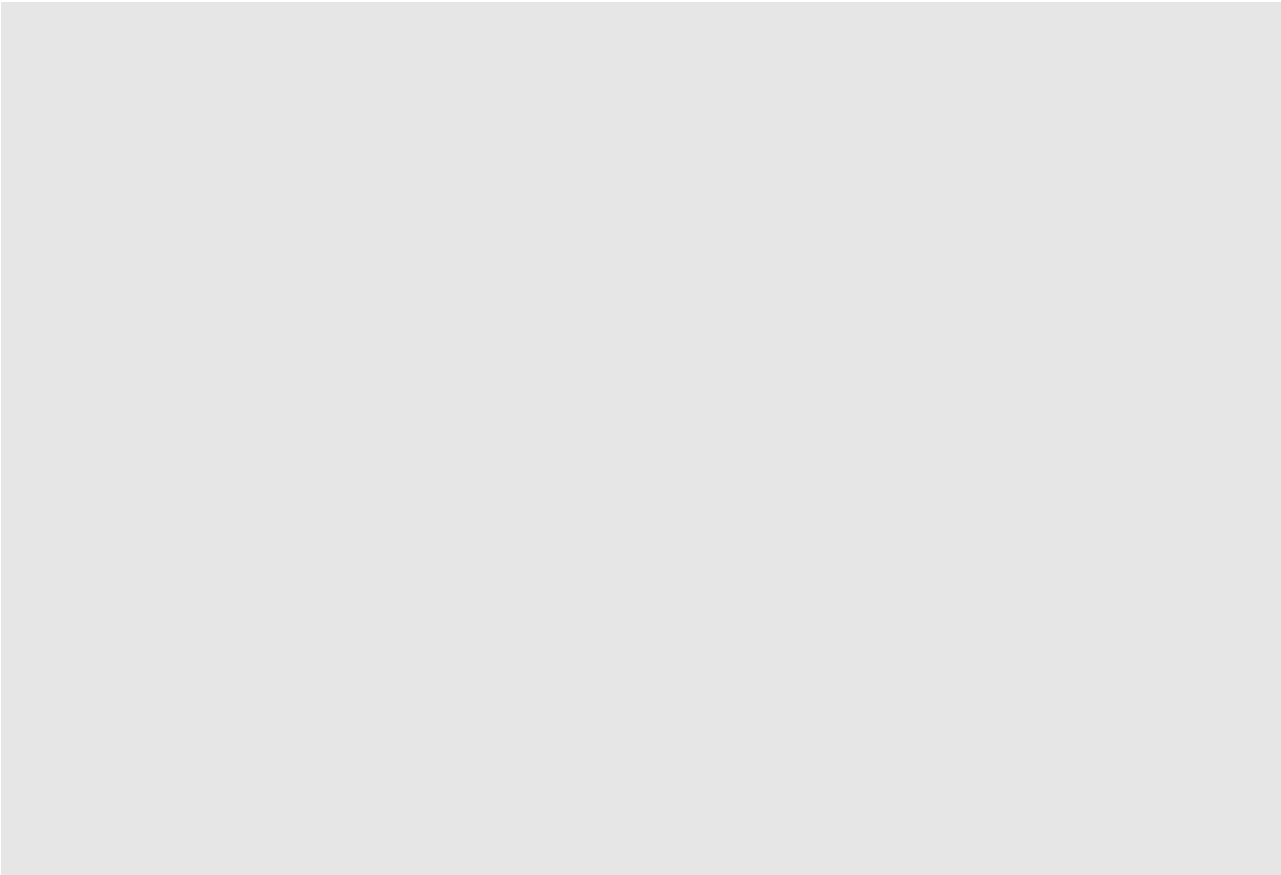

Assault with batteries -- Nov. 30

Security Forces responded to a base housing unit where a front window was damaged. Seems unknown punks had thrown three "D" cell batteries at the window then ran, and kept going, and going, and going.

911 medical response -- Dec. 1

Security Forces, the Fire Department, and an ambulance responded to a base housing unit, where a man had fallen down the stairs and was complaining of pain in his leg. The ambulance transported him to Penrose Hospital for further treatment.

TSP open season runs through Dec. 31

By 1st Lt. Mike Andrews
21st Space Wing Public Affairs

Open season for the UNISERV Thrift Savings Plan began Oct. 15 and will run until Dec. 31, so there's time for anyone to enroll or change their contributions.

Any member of the ready reserve or military members with 60 days or more of active duty are eligible for this program.

The TSP is a Federal Government-sponsored retirement savings and investment plan designed to provide additional retirement income.

The maximum annual contribution for 2003 is 8 percent of your base pay, with a 1 percent increase each year until 2006. This type of information is available at a monthly TSP briefing, provided free of charge at the Peterson Family Support Center in Building 350.

"The information we provide to the service member is very detailed, which helps them make well-educated decisions for their financial future," said Carol Walker, of the Family Support Center. The next TSP program briefing is scheduled for Dec. 20 from 1-2:30 p.m.

There are currently five investment funds to choose from. The five investment funds are the Government Securities Investment (G); Fixed Income Index Investment (F); Common Stock Index Investment (C); Small Capitalization Stock Index Investment (S); International Stock Index Investment (I).

These funds range from conservative to high-risk, with each having its benefits and risks. You can choose to diversify and have a percentage in any or all the funds at once.

A nice benefit that provides flexibility and helps protect the investor is the interfund transfer.

An interfund transfer is the movement of some or all of your existing account balance among the G, F, C, S, and I Funds. You may move all or part of the money in your account from one fund to any other fund or funds. You can make an interfund transfer in any month you wish, without an annual limit.

If you have a TSP account, you are allowed to put up to 100 percent of any incentive pay or special pay, including any bonus pay, toward your account, not to exceed the limit set by the IRS. In 2003, you may tax defer up to $12,000 to your TSP account.

The TSP is a long-term retirement savings plan that provides special tax advantages. Limitations on withdrawals help ensure that retirement savings will be used for their intended purpose. Therefore, TSP participants who are still members of the uniformed services are limited to the following two types of in-service withdrawals: Age-based in-service withdrawals for participants who are 59½ or older, and financial hardship in-service withdrawals for participants who can document financial hardship.

TSP is a defined contribution plan. The retirement income you receive from your TSP account will depend on how much you have contributed to your account during your working years and the earnings of those contributions.

For more information or to sign up to attend the next TSP briefing, call the Family Support Center at 556-6141. You can also visit the TSP web site at www.tsp.gov.

TSP at a glance

Some of the specifics of the Thrift Savings Plan for servicemembers include:

■ Any member of the ready reserve or military member with 60 days or more of active duty is eligible for this program.

■ The TSP plan is a Federal Government-sponsored retirement savings and investment plan designed to provide additional retirement income.

■ Beginning in December, military members can contribute up to 8 percent of their base pay. Airmen can also invest all or part of their bonuses or special pay. Total yearly tax-deferred investment cannot exceed $12,000.

■ Those serving in tax-free combat zones are allowed up to $40,000 in annual contributions.

■ Military members can enroll through the Defense Finance and Accounting Service Web site at <http://www.dfas.mil/emss/>. They can also enroll by filling out a form TSP-U-1 at local military personnel flights, finance offices and family support centers.

■ Contribution allocations, how an employee chooses to invest money among the five funds, can be made by calling the TSP automated ThriftLine at (504) 255-8777 or on the TSP web site at <http://www.tsp.gov/>.

■ For general TSP questions, call the AFPC contact center at DSN 665-5000, or commercial (866) 229-7074, or go to http://www.afpc.ran-dolph.af.mil/mpf/TSP/thrift_savings_plan.htm.

Day of Infamy

Ceremony marks historic attack

Jim Garamone
American Forces Press Service

Dec. 7, 1941, the world changed. American service members based in Hawaii saw that seminal moment in history, and those alive today still vividly remember that Sunday morning 60 years ago.

George Phraner was a petty officer first class aboard the battleship USS Arizona. His battle station was a forward five-inch gun. He had just gone topside to get some air after finishing breakfast when the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor started.

"Just as we left the mess area we heard this noise," he said in an oral history on the Pearl Harbor Survivors' Association Web site. "We could hear and see there were airplanes. I looked across the bow of the ship and could see large plumes of smoke coming up from Ford Island."

He said he didn't comprehend at first that what he was seeing was an attack.

"It didn't mean anything to us until a large group of planes came near the ship and we could see for the first time the Rising Sun emblem on the plane wings," he said. "The bombing was becoming heavier all around us and we knew this was really it." He headed for his gun when general quarters sounded.

"It was standard practice to keep only a limited amount of ammunition at the guns," Phraner said. "There we were, the Japanese dropping bombs over us and we had no ammo. All the training and practicing ... and when the real thing came we had no ammunition where we needed it."

But this fact saved his life. His gun captain pointed to him and told him to go aft and bring up ammunition from the magazines.

"I remember getting these cases of ammo powder and shells weighing about 90 pounds each," he said. "I had begun lifting shells into the hoist when a deafening roar filled the room and the entire ship shuddered."

The explosion was the ship's forward magazines exploding after a hit by an armor-piercing Japanese bomb. "Only moments before, I stood with my gun crew just a few feet from the center of the explosion," Phraner said. "My whole gun crew was killed."

The Arizona was doomed. Phraner abandoned ship, swam to Ford Island and would live to serve on other Navy ships throughout the Pacific War.

A Pearl Harbor survivor pays his respects, and offers a salute to his fallen shipmates during the U.S. Navy 60th Anniversary Commemorative Ceremony aboard the USS Arizona Memorial Dec. 7, 2001.

The Arizona remains where it sank and its stripped, sunken hull still seeps oil even after 60 years. It is the tomb of many of the 1,177 crewmembers known to have died the attack. The National Park Service operates a hall-like, 184-foot-long memorial building that sweeps over the ship's beam.

Contrary to popular legend, the USS Arizona is no longer in commission. As a special tribute to the ship and its lost crew, however, the Stars and Stripes fly from a flagpole attached to the ship's severed mainmast.

In 1998, another famous battleship docked near the Arizona Memorial, bringing a kind of closure to the Pearl Harbor experience.

That fitting symbol was the USS Missouri. The Japanese boarded the Missouri in Tokyo Bay on Sept. 2, 1945, to sign the instruments of surrender.

President signs defense authorization bill

by Staff Sgt. A.J. Bosker
Air Force Print News

WASHINGTON -- President Bush signed the fiscal 2003 National Defense Authorization Act into law Dec. 2 at the Pentagon.

The NDAA authorizes the Department of Defense to spend $375 billion to continue the transformation of the military to face future challenges and to fight the global war on terrorism.

More than one-fourth of that amount, $94 billion, will go to support personnel programs and quality-of-life initiatives.

"It sets priorities for our Defense Department in a critical, critical period for our country," Bush said.

According to the president, the NDAA rewards the service and sacrifice of the nation's military members and their families with higher pay, improved facilities and better housing.

It also ensures servicemembers have the best equipment, the most advanced weapons, supports operations and maintenance, and continues investments in missile defense and new technologies to give America's military every advantage on the battlefields of the future.

"America's military is strong, and that's the way it should be," Bush said. "Our nation and world are safer that way. Now and in the future, we will maintain a military that is second to none."

As part of this year's overall defense budget, the Air Force was authorized $28.3 billion for the procurement of aircraft, missiles and ammunition; $33.7 billion in operation and maintenance funds for the active-duty force, Air Force Reserve and Air National Guard; $389 million for environmental restoration; $1.3 billion in military construction; and $684 million in family housing construction.

The highlights of the bill include:

- Fully funding an across-the-board 4.1 percent military pay raise with targeted increases of up to 6.5 percent for mid-grade and senior noncommissioned officers.

- Reducing the out-of-pocket housing expenses from the current 11.3 percent to 7.5 percent in fiscal 2003, eventually eliminating the out-of-pocket costs by fiscal 2005.

- Expanding TRICARE Prime Remote benefits to family members who remain at a remote location when they cannot accompany the military member on a new assignment or duty. It also extended these benefits to family members of remotely located air reserve component members when they are ordered to active duty for more than 30 days.

- Extending several special pays and bonuses through December 2003, including enlistment and re-enlistment bonuses. It also permits the service secretaries to award an incentive pay of up to $1,500 per month to military members serving in assignments involving difficult working conditions or undesirable overseas locations.

- Doubling the regular basic allowance for subsistence for single enlisted airmen stationed in remote locations without adequate availability of meals from a government messing facility.

- Creating a new payment for all military retirees who were wounded in combat and received the Purple Heart and those who were severely disabled in combat-related incidents. Monthly payments would range from $103 to $2,100 each month, depending on the level of disability, and would represent a partial to full offset of the reduction in retired pay required by the current law upon concurrent receipt.

- Continuing the existing DoD payment of a special stipend for severely disabled military retirees with a disability rating of 60 percent or higher.

- Allowing service secretaries to grant a one-time leave of absence of up to 14 days to servicemembers with qualifying emergencies to prevent them from entering into unearned or excessive leave status.

- Reducing the minimum years of service required by reservists before they are eligible to qualify for retirement pay from eight years to six years.

- Extending the number of years members of the selected reserve may use Montgomery GI Bill benefits from 10 to 14 years.

- Authorizing commissary privileges to National Guardsmen who are participating in federally declared national emergencies.

- Providing $4.6 billion for procurement of 23 F/A-22 Raptor production aircraft and continued Raptor development.

- Increasing the service's unmanned aerial fleet with the procurement of three Global Hawk and 29 Predator unmanned aerial vehicles.

- Providing $3.7 billion for the purchase of 12 C-17 Globemaster IIIs and to support a multiyear procurement of additional C-17s.

- Funding the procurement of one E-8C Joint Surveillance Target Attack Radar System aircraft, one EC-130J and 35 T-6A Texan II Joint Primary Aircraft Training System aircraft.

- Authorizing a Korean Defense Service Medal to be issued to military members who served in the theater since July 28, 1954.

"The men and women of our military bring credit to our flag and security to our country," Bush said. "On behalf of the American people, I thank you for all you've done (and) for all you will do in the cause of freedom and the cause of peace."

The annual defense budget comprises two parts -- the appropriations bill, which the president signed on Oct. 23, and the authorization bill. The appropriations bill allocates funds to operate the Defense Department.

The authorization bill permits the DoD to spend the allocated funds.

Outdoor Recreation continues holiday tree-cutting tradition

By 2nd Lt. Suzy Kohout
21st Space Wing Public Affairs

Outdoor Recreation holds its annual Christmas tree-cutting day Dec. 14. Join Outdoor Recreation Dec. 14 to make this old holiday tradition a reality for you and your family.

"Family memories of a Christmas tree cutting are some of the best of the whole year," said Randall Greenfield, 21st Services Squadron. "Don't miss out on the opportunity to create some memories that may well last you and your family a lifetime."

This year, the guide will take customers to the Pike National Forest along Rampart Range Road.

For $20, Outdoor Recreation offers customers a guide, transportation to the tree-cutting site, a Forest Service tree-cutting permit, and delivery of the tree to your residence.

To save some money, individuals and families may pay $15 and transport themselves to the McDonald's in Woodland Park at 10 a.m., where they will meet their guide, Loy Holmes, Outdoor Recreation Assistant.

Customers leaving from Peterson will meet Holmes at Outdoor Recreation at 8:30 a.m.

"People really enjoy the family day out," said Holmes. "Many people would not attempt this outing without someone who knows where to go and what is necessary for a successful trip."

"We almost didn't plan this trip this year, because the Hayman Fire burned most of the normal Christmas tree cutting sites," said Holmes. "However, the Pikes Peak Ranger district has designated a new area."

Holmes has been a Christmas tree cutting guide for Peterson for two years. He has worked for Peterson for five years, and has at least 15 years wilderness experience.

Last year, Holmes took as many as a dozen families over a couple days. If interest rises, Outdoor Recreation will schedule more weekends.

For reservations, call Outdoor Recreation at 556-4867 by Wednesday.

Peterson brings Thanksgiving to dorm residents

By Staff Sgt. Melanie Epperson
21st Space Wing Public Affairs

As a compact disc played for party guests, the lead singer of a popular music group bellowed out the powerful lyrics, “We are, we are the youth of the nation,” and dorm dwellers began filing in for a home-cooked Thanksgiving meal.

In a combined effort, The Diamond Councils of Peterson and Schriever AFBs and Cheyenne Mountain AFS planned, prepared, and served Thanksgiving dinner to more than 150 dorm residents Nov. 24, in the dayroom of Dorm 1164.

“We started planning this a couple of months ago,” said Master Sgt. Craig Dockum, president of the Peterson Diamond Council. “Unless they’re from the local area, our troops living in the dorms are away from their families, and we wanted to bring them together socially in a family atmosphere.”

The commanders of the various units, squadrons, and bases donated funds or turkeys, and the first sergeants purchased the necessary meats, side dishes, sodas, and utensils with the remaining funds.

“The 5/6 Council, Top Three Association, Company Grade Officers Council, Air Force Sergeants’ Association, and several supervisors and civilian employees provided the stuffing, potatoes, breads, veggies, and desserts,” said Master Sgt. David Sylvester, 50th Civil Engineer Squadron First Sergeant.

According to several first sergeants, the chapel and chaplains also played a key role.

It was a team effort, and everyone did their part, Sylvester added. “Ultimately our job as first sergeants is our people,” Sylvester added. “We have to keep them happy. They’re our extended family.”

Setup for the event began at 10 a.m., when first sergeants and volunteers started to transform the dorm’s dayroom into a family-style holiday setting.

“The 21st Civil Engineering Squadron provided plywood to cover the dayroom’s pool table and turn it into a deluxe dinner table,” Dockum said. “We also brought in other tables to hold the enormous amount of food we had.”

The tables were covered with festive cloths and other decorations were added. To add the ultimate Thanksgiving family-style traditions, football games were showing on the big screen television, and music was playing in the background.

Behind the scenes, Master Sgt. Rey Santacruz, Detachment 5 and 11 First Sergeant, spent most of his time in the back carving the massive amounts of turkey and hams.

After the chaplain said the blessing, the gorge-first began.

Most dorm residents here without family agreed that the event made them feel at home.

“This is nice because I don’t have anyone here to celebrate Thanksgiving with,” said Airman 1st Class Michelle McConnell, dorm resident.

According to a newly assigned dorm resident, Airman 1st Class Saleem Alnas, it was also a good chance to meet new people and see what the Air Force family is all about.

With the current high-operations tempo and Air Expeditionary Force rotations, temporary duties seem to come up often.

According to Brig. Gen. Duane Deal, 21st Space Wing commander, the event was a special outreach to those still at home. “In today’s Air Force, there are those who have deployed, and those who will. When you’re TDY or deployed, those locations do their best to make such events special. But there’s no beating enjoying it with those you know at home station, even as we remember those who are away.”

“I’m leaving soon to go TDY, and this is my only chance to celebrate Thanksgiving at my home base,” said Airman 1st Class Kathleen Hensley, dorm resident.

Senior Master Sgt. Cathy Johnson, 10th Medical Group Operating Location Peterson AFB First Sergeant, also wanted to express the gratitude she feels for the support of her dorm dwellers. “We really appreciate the care that we receive here as a tenant unit. Peterson is a great place to work.”

According to Col. Larry James, 50th Space Wing commander, this was a chance to show the dorm residents their leadership appreciates them. “Our airmen work hard every day, and we want to show our thanks for what they’re doing,” James said.

On a different note, the Diamond Council planned to feed 250-300 troops, and there was quite a bit of food left over after the party. “To help spread the holiday cheer and to help those less fortunate, the chaplains delivered the remaining food to the Marian House,” Sylvester said. The Marian House is a soup kitchen that provides services to help people out of poverty. They serve around 600 meals a day to 450 clients, seven days a week, 365 days a year. ⬅️🔪

Master Sgt. Rey Santacruz, First Sergeant for Space and Missile Systems Center Detachment 11 and Electronic Systems Center Detachment 5, carves a ham for dormitory residents Nov. 24.

Airman 1st Class David Mitchell, dorm resident, enjoys a Thanksgiving meal at Dormitory 1164. Volunteers from around the Peterson Complex helped serve more than 200 people a home-cooked meal for the holiday Nov. 24.

Airman 1st Class Kari Liloy, a dorm resident, serves herself a piece of cake.

Senior Master Sgt. Brian Gauthier, 21st Security Forces Squadron First Sergeant, cuts pies for dorm residents.

Policy on travel card use changes

Tech. Sgt.
Daniel Bermudez
21st Logistics Readiness Squadron

As you may have heard by now, Bank of America has cancelled more than 84,000 government travel card accounts within the Air Force.

Previous policy dictated that travelers not having a GTC were required to have a letter signed by their commander or officer in charge stating the reason why they did not possess a card. Under the guidance from Air Force Space Command Finance Directorate, this policy has been cancelled. The new guidance mandates that the travel approving/directing official put either paragraph 9a (mandatory use of GTC) or paragraph 9b (exempted from mandatory travel card use) in the remarks block of the Department of Defense Form 1610, Request and Authorization for TDY Travel of DoD Personnel.

If the travel order is marked 9a, the traveler will be asked for their GTC number. The cost of the airline tickets and applicable fees will be charged to the traveler's individually billed account. If the travel order is marked 9b (exemption), the Traffic Management Flight will allow Commercial Travel Office personnel to charge the airline tickets and applicable service fees to the centrally billed account.

If the orders are not correctly annotated to reflect the traveler's personal circumstance, the TMF will require an amendment prior to issuance of the airline tickets.

One of the questions asked frequently is, "Can I use my personal credit card to pay for the charges?" The answer is, "No, you cannot." Joint Federal Travel Regulation (Military) paragraph U3145 C.3, and Joint Travel Regulation (JTR) (Civilian) paragraph C2002 C.3 state, "The City Pair Program is so attractive that usage is strictly limited. There are a few exceptions, but in general, only military or civilian personnel on official travel may use the program with an appropriate form of payment using either the GTC, CBA or SF 1169, Government Transportation Request."

Under the Infrequent Traveler Cancellation Project, cardholders should be notified by their unit point of contact in the event their cards have been cancelled.

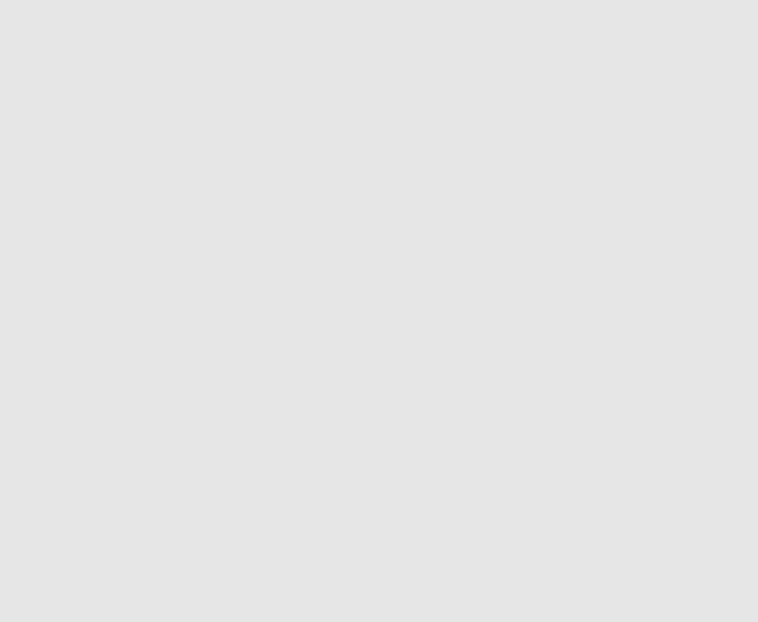

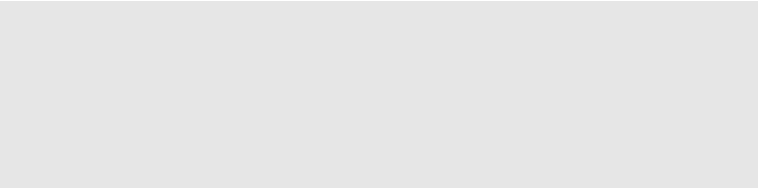

If you are going to travel to a temporary duty location, and you believe you might fall under this program because you are an infrequent traveler, you should verify the status of your travel account with Bank of America, and ensure that your travel orders are going to reflect the appropriate travel card authorization (9a or 9b) for your circumstance.

Little things really do matter

By Lt. Col. John L. Donovan
Chief, Readiness Division at Cheyenne Mountain Operations Center

The other day I encountered a young lieutenant in an off-base parking lot, wearing a uniform but no hat. In uniform myself, I stopped my car and said, “Excuse me, Lieutenant, you forgot your hat.” Rather than accepting my phrasing as the gentle reminder it was meant to be, the lieutenant replied, “No, I didn’t. It’s right here,” gesturing with the hat in her hand. I told her she needed to wear it when outdoors, and drove away.

Later that day I again encountered the same lieutenant – same parking lot, same missing hat. When I told her she had once again “forgotten” her hat, she responded with many of the excuses I’ve heard in the past for not wearing a hat outdoors, and a few new ones as well: “My hands are full.” “It’s just a few steps.” “I don’t have to wear a hat off base.” “I’m only going from my vehicle to my door.” “I’m going by the ‘rule of common sense.’ ” “I was told it’s no big deal.”

Was the lieutenant right? Was this “no big deal?” AFI 36-2903, Table 2.7 clearly states that members in uniform will wear headgear when outdoors. No exceptions are made for being on- or off-base, walking a few steps or a few miles, having your hands full, time of day or weather conditions. If you look up and see sky, wear your hat.

We all know this. It was taught to us when we first learned how to wear the uniform. We know it’s the right thing to do. And “doing the right thing even when no one is watching” is a good definition of integrity. The Air Force considers integrity so crucial that it has designated it one of our core values: “Integrity First.” Do the right thing because it’s the right thing to do. And yet, to some people, this isn’t reason enough.

Why does it matter? It’s just a hat, a stupid rule, there are no consequences for not wearing it ... or are there?

When I see a military person outdoors without a hat, or committing some other minor infraction, it makes me question their integrity. If they can’t even follow so simple a directive as “Wear your hat outdoors,” what else are they unwilling or unable to do? What other corners do they cut? Pencil-whip inspection results? Say they never received an important message when in fact they just forgot to respond? Share classified information with a civilian buddy? Drive while intoxicated? I have no way of knowing where they draw the line, but the example they set certainly makes me wonder. It also makes me wonder why they believe their behavior is acceptable – which leads me to the “Broken Window Theory.”

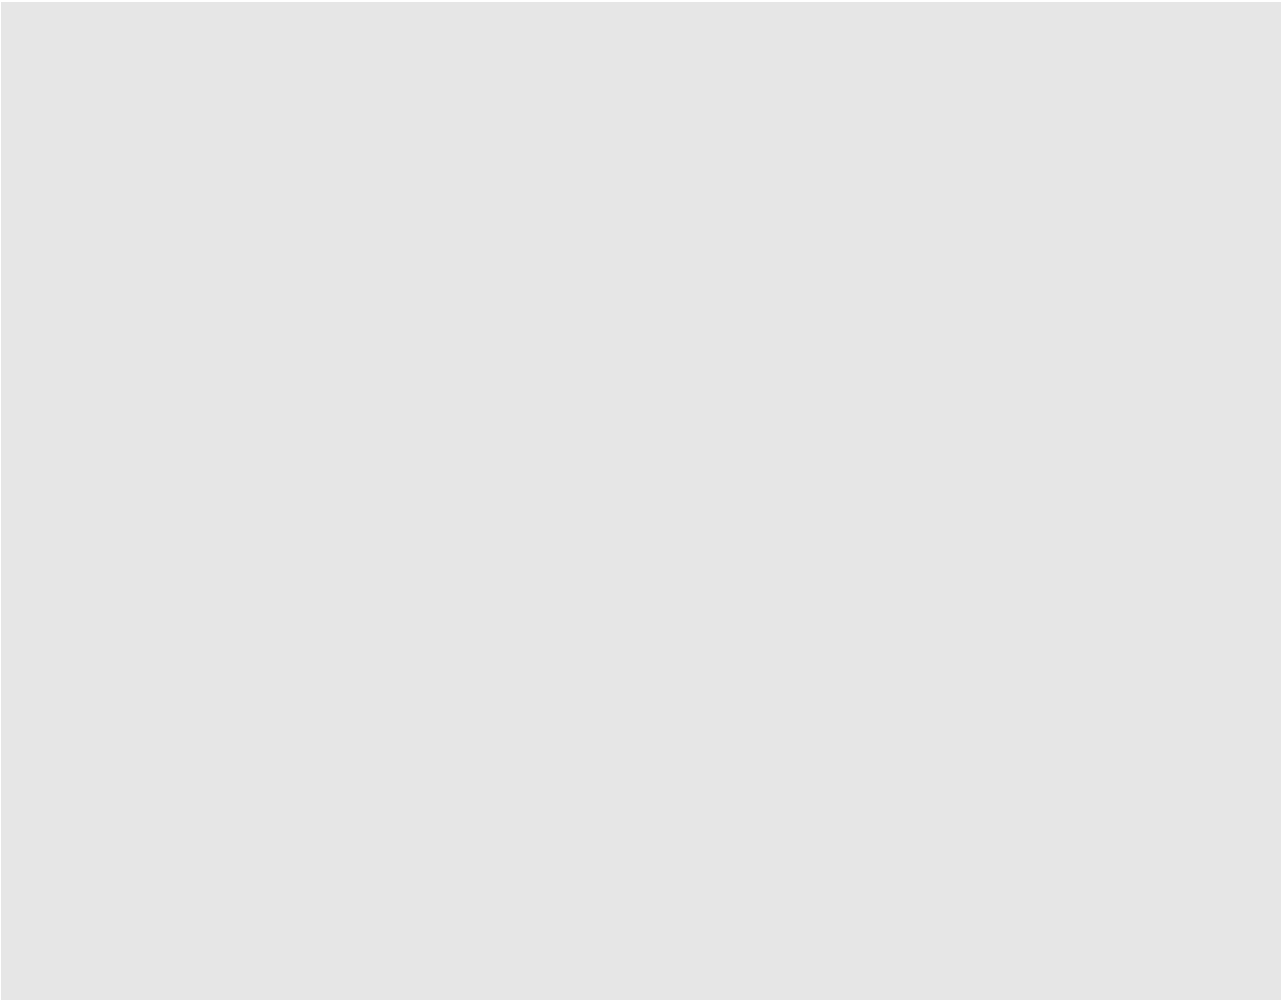

The “Broken Window Theory,” developed by James Q. Wilson and George Kelling, suggests that little things do matter. A building with a broken window that never gets repaired leaves the impression that no one cares and no one is responsible. Accordingly, vandals will choose that building in which to break more windows and place graffiti with impunity. The sense of disrepair will slowly spread from the building to the street, where eventually anything goes – littering, vandalism, panhandling, gang activity, and crime. The decay of a community has begun, thanks to one broken window. But fix that window right away, and the community will continue to prosper.

In the military community, our customs, courtesies, and standards are often the broken windows of integrity and professionalism. When seemingly small infractions such as not wearing a hat, not saluting, or treating superiors disrespectfully are overlooked or tolerated, they slowly become part of an organization’s culture. A lack of standards becomes the standard, pushing the idea of what is acceptable to include even more serious deviations. New arrivals quickly pick up on and adopt these deviations, regardless of what they learned in basic training or officer training, because this is “the real world” now, and they’re learning by example how to function in this new community. It is a slow and insidious process that turns a culture of excellence into a culture of expedience and mediocrity.

In other words, not wearing a hat outdoors is a small infraction with big implications. It makes those who observe it question your integrity in other matters. It sets a poor example for others to follow. And it serves as a “broken window” – a first step on the road to a culture of unprofessionalism and mediocrity.

No big deal? A very big deal, indeed. And in case you’re wondering what happened with the hatless lieutenant, her boss was apprised of the situation and quickly took steps to fix the problem. The broken window has been repaired, and the lieutenant’s hat is on.

Peak Performer

Name: Donald D. Meyer
Unit: 721st Civil Engineer Squadron
Duty Title: Materials Aquisition Administrator
Time in Service: I have been employed for two years on this contract and am a retired E-7 with the U.S. Navy.
Hometown: Fullerton, Neb.
Off-duty Interests: League bowling, competitive and leisure golf, participating in my son's school activities at Jenkins Elementary.
Why did you join the military? I joined the Navy to serve our great nation and see the world. I retired with more than 21 years of honorable service and secured a job with SMI International here at Cheyenne Mountain Air Force Station, maintaining the infrastructure and supporting critical mission utility systems.
Favorite part of your job: My favorite part of the job is talking and negotiating with the many vendors throughout Colorado and other parts of the U.S. I find people of various backgrounds in the areas I deal with and they invariably have a story to share while we are conducting business. People fascinate me, and I meet many in pursuit of this job.

What inspires you to do what you do? My inspiration here at CMAFS is to be the best at locating all material/equipment required by the Civil Engineering contractor, and successfully procure these items at the most competitive price. I try to accomplish this while meeting all government statues for supporting small and disadvantaged businesses. Purchasing supplies at the very best price not only helps our company meet it's financial goals, but also saves valuable supply dollars.
What goals do you have: My goals are to be a successful parent, help SMI be as successful as possible here inside CMAFS, and become the best golfer here at CMAFS. I also aspire to rise in the company, perhaps one day becoming the project manager for this contract.

December is Drinking and Drugged Driving “3D” Awareness Month

December tops the list as deadliest of months to drive. Deaths go up due to alcohol consumption,as well as worsened weather, during the holidays.
There were 16,653 alcohol-related fatalities in 2000 – 40 percent of the total traffic fatalities for the year. Every 33 minutes, someone in America dies in an alcohol-related crash.
It's not just alcohol impairing drivers. Drugs like marijuana and LSD, and the rave drugs Ecstasy, Ketamine, and Rohypnol, also contribute to traffic fatalities.
Approximately 1.5 million drivers were arrested in 1999 for driving under the influence of alcohol or narcotics.
Between the hours of 10 p.m. and 1 a.m., 1 in 13 drivers on the road is legally impaired. Between 1 a.m. and 6 a.m. on weekend mornings, 1 in 7 is drunk.
Even if you're sober, others might not be. Keep your eyes open.

- Plan ahead ...
- Take a taxi
- Arrange for a designated driver
- Stay the night
